

The majority of refugees and forcibly displaced persons seek refuge in cities

Rapid movements of people into cities can cause strains of infrastructure, basic services and the housing market

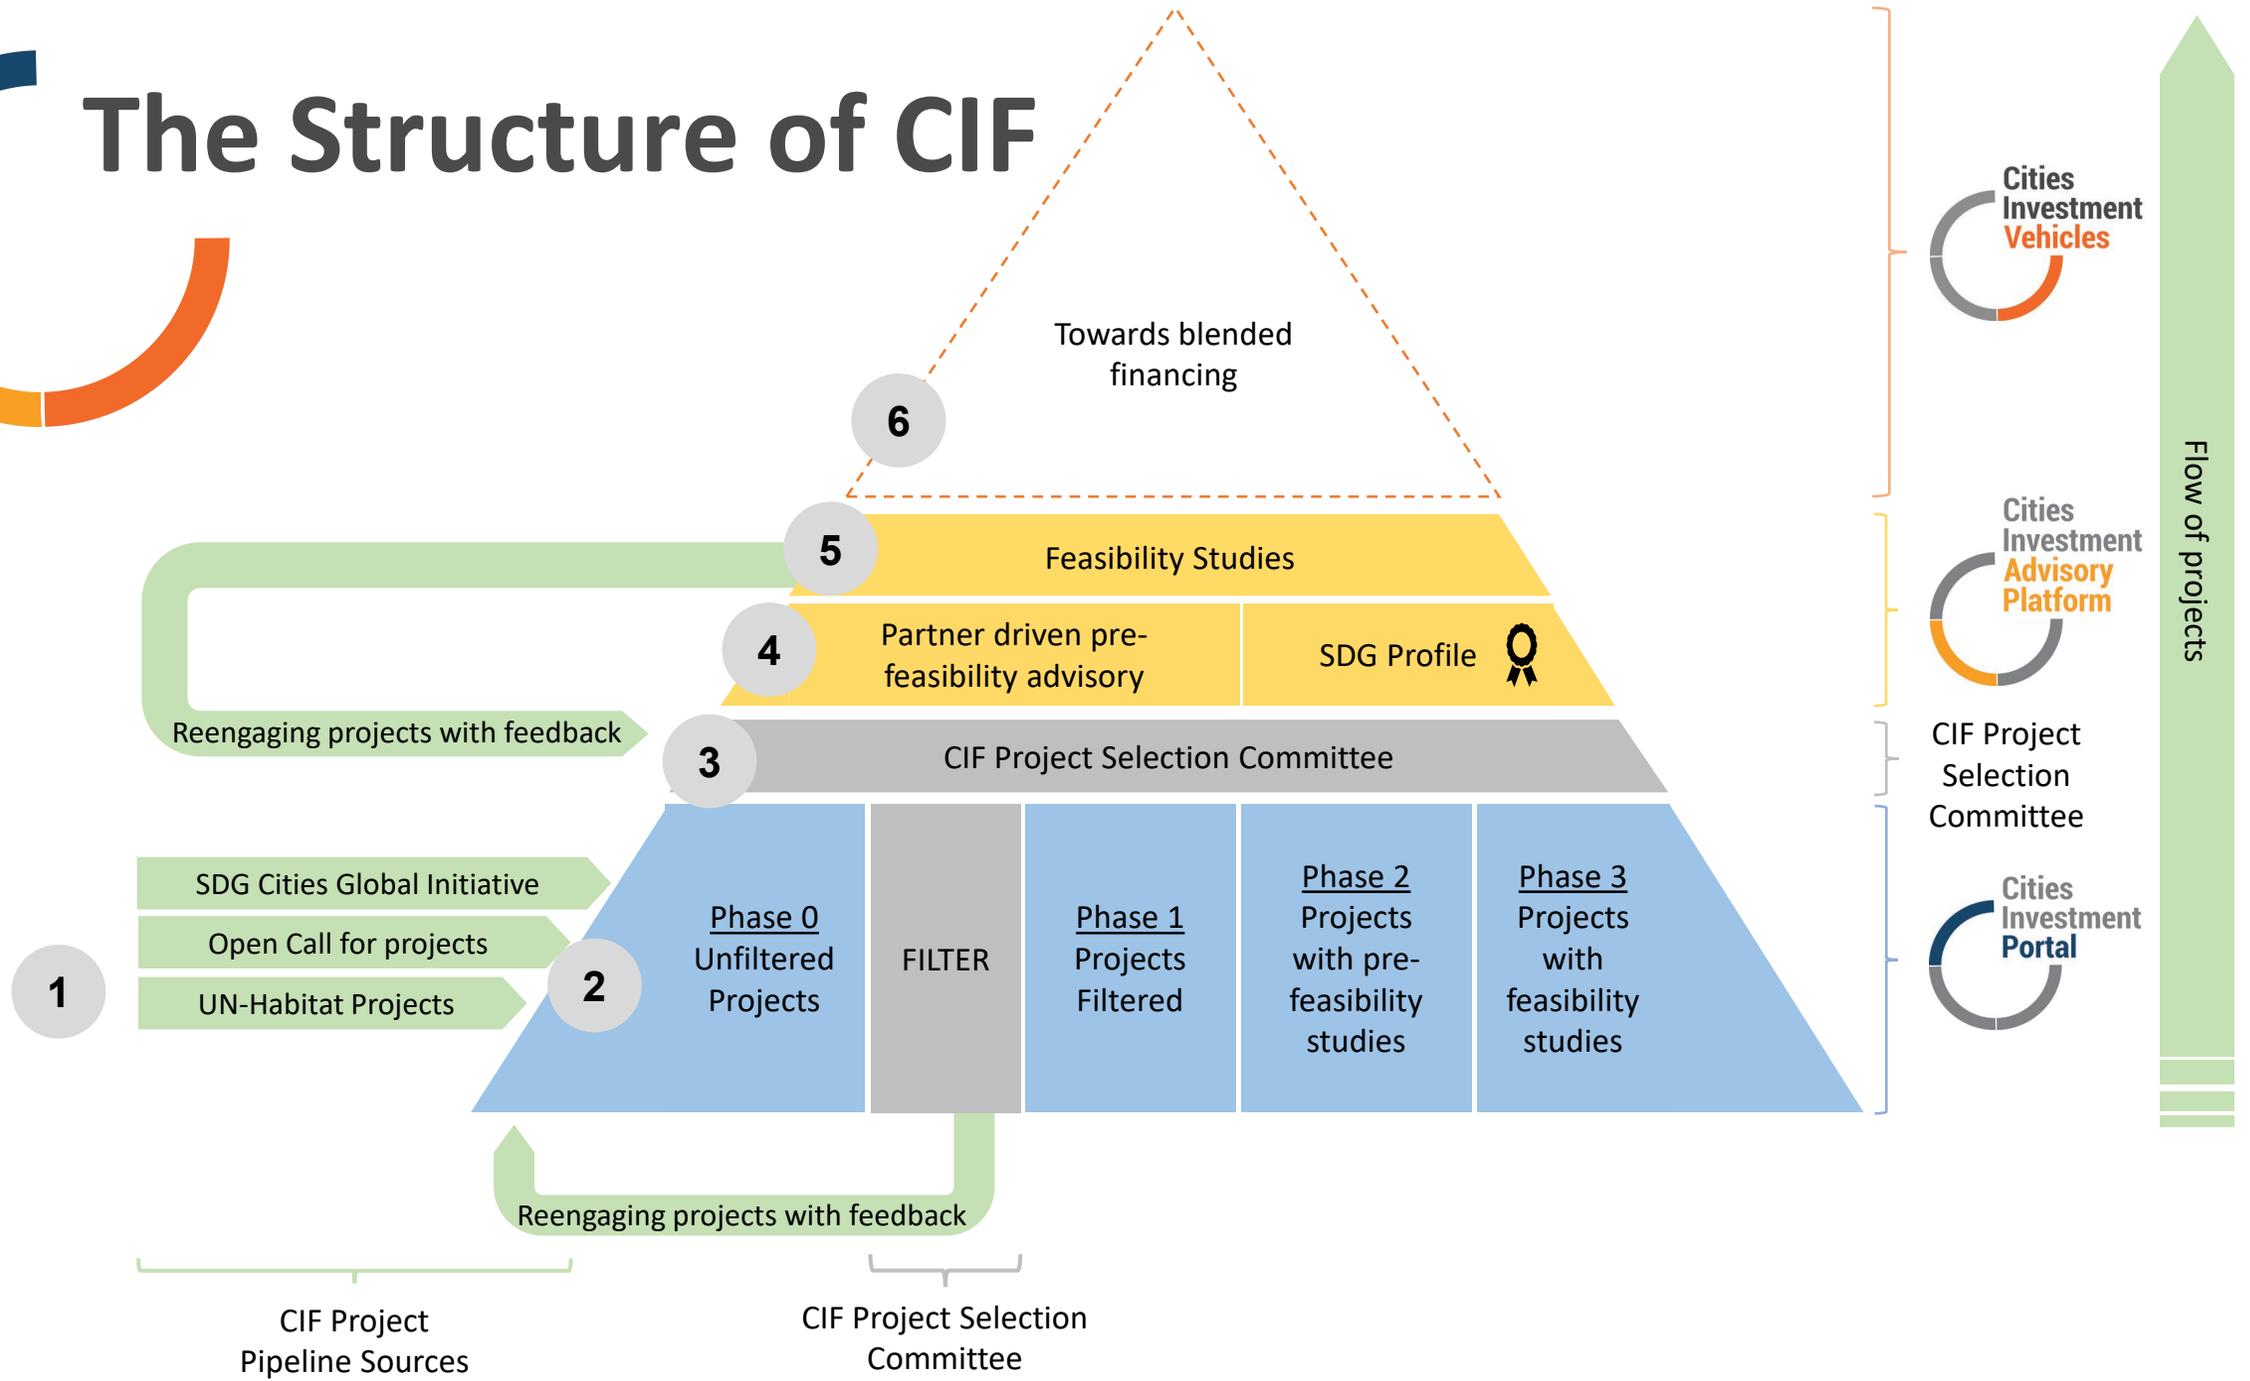

Displacement is increasingly protracted

City Profiling enables multi-sectoral impacts of displacement to be assessed and interventions that address strains to be identified and prioritized

The City Investment Facility enables the flow of capital into urban development projects

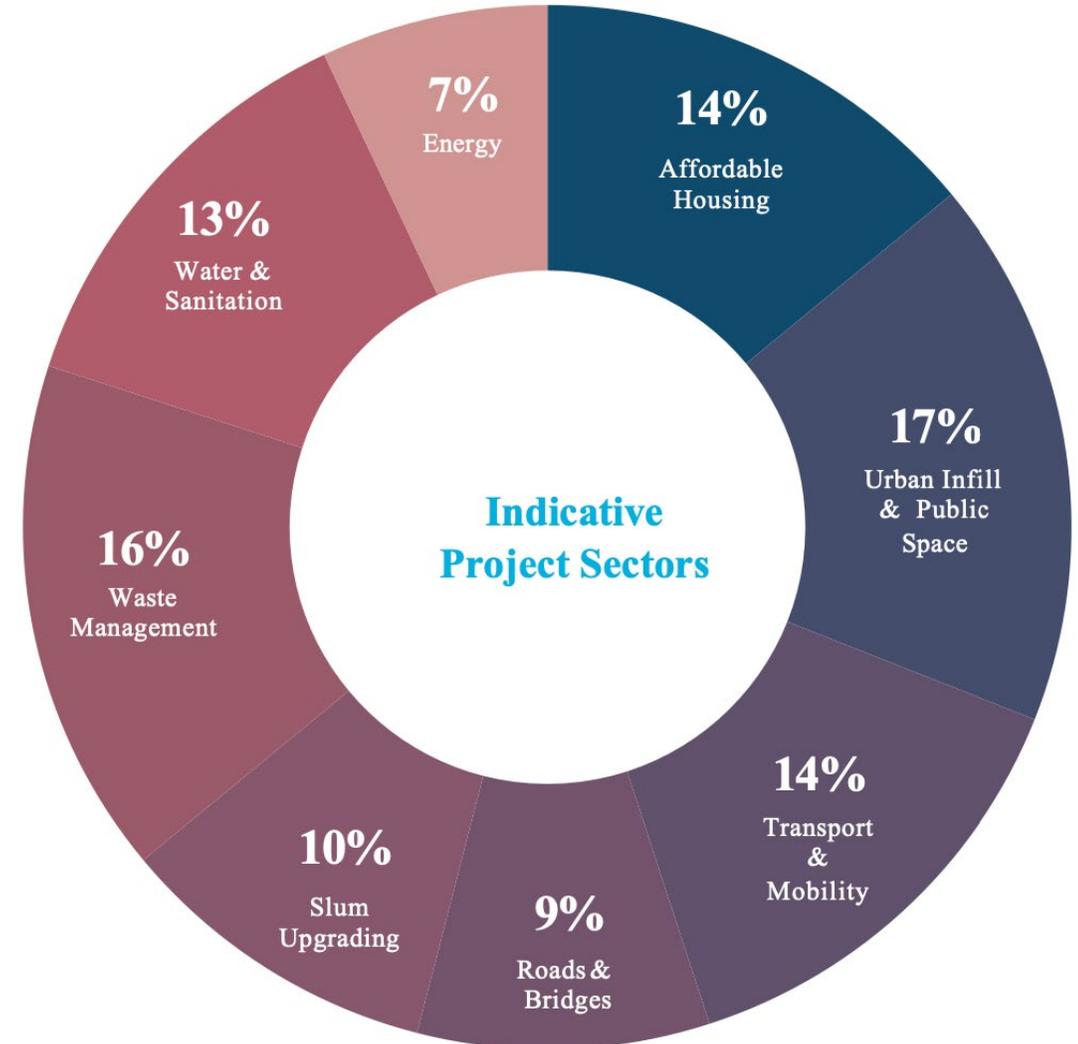

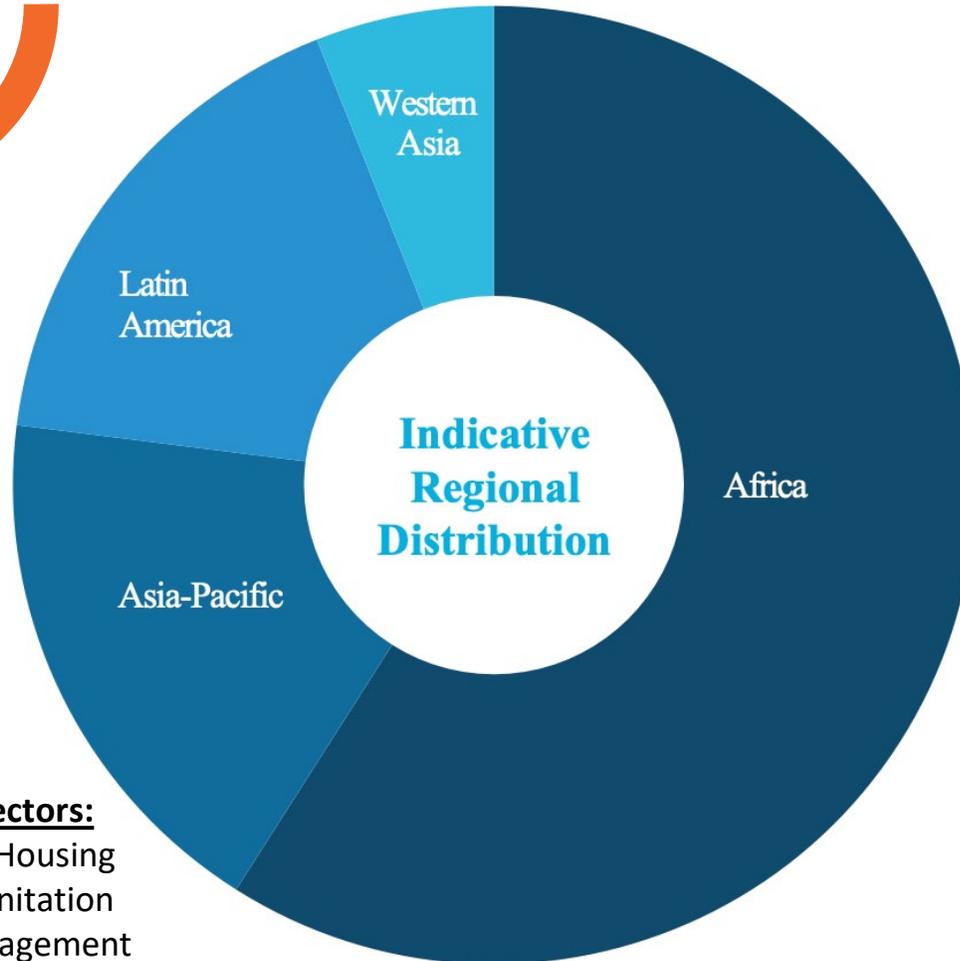

The Structure of CIF

Added Value of CIF

Phase	Added Value that CIF brings to a project in this phase
Project planning	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Projects actively align with SDGs – receiving individualized assessment and advisory throughout pre-feasibility and feasibility.• Projects are more bankable and de-risked – having received bespoke technical assistance and bankability advisory at pre-feasibility and feasibility stages.• Shortening project lifecycle – between 3 and 9 months from concept to feasibility.• All sustainable development projects in cities are eligible for support – unlike other existing project preparation facilities, CIF is not a specialist fund, and caters to projects that may fall outside the scope of existing facilities. Further, CIF welcomes partnerships with other users and facilities.
Project financing	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Wider public awareness — showcased on CI Portal, and at Regional and World Urban Forums, and matched with diverse and early-stage investors.• Equipped with i) feasibility studies and ii) SDG alignment reports tailored to the investors' needs.• Securing private sector capital through investor outreach, and a blended finance approach.• Bridges the gap – allows for secondary cities to aggregate projects and reach larger-cap investors that may not have been otherwise interested in the investment opportunity.
